INTRODUCTION

12. Between October 2011 and July 2012, Economic Strategy LLC ("Economic Strategy"), Linked Service Solutions, LLC ("LSS") and Caribbean Cruise Line, Inc. ("CCL")

(collectively, the “Cruise Call Telemarketers”) bombarded American consumers with billions of robocalls, an average of 12-15 million calls per day.

13. Consumers who answered the Cruise Call Telemarketers’ robocalls heard the following prerecorded message, or a nearly identical version:

Hello, this is John from Political Opinions of America. You’ve been carefully selected to participate in a short 30 second research survey and for participating you’ll receive a free two day cruise for two people to the Bahamas, courtesy of one of our supporters. Gratuities and a small port tax will apply. To begin the survey, please press 1 now. To decline the survey and be removed from our list, press 9. Thank you.

14. The Cruise Call Telemarketers’ prerecorded call then asked consumers several automated political survey questions. After completing the survey questions, consumers heard a recording stating that they were entitled to “a free cruise to the Bahamas” as a reward for taking the survey. Consumers were then instructed to press 1 if they were interested in receiving the “free” cruise.

15. Consumers who pressed 1 were then transferred to a live telemarketer working on behalf of CCL to market cruises. The telemarketer would inform consumers that the “free” cruise would cost $59 per person in port taxes and attempt to sell them pre-boarding hotels, cruise excursions, enhanced accommodations, and other travel packages.

16. Pacific Telecom Communications Group, International Telephone Corporation, International Telephone, LLC, T M Caller ID, LLC and Telephone Management Corporation (collectively, the “TMC Companies”) assisted and facilitated their clients, including the Cruise Call Telemarketers, in their illegal calling campaigns in numerous ways. First, the TMC Companies made it possible for the Cruise Call Telemarketers and other clients to spoof Caller ID information by supplying them with a large quantity of phone numbers that would appear on consumers’ phones or Caller ID devices when they received telemarketing calls. Second, the TMC Companies provided the Cruise Call Telemarketers and other clients the ability to choose (and change) the calling party names that displayed with each Caller ID number. Third, the TMC Companies helped fund the Cruise Call Telemarketers' and other clients' robocalling campaigns by sharing "dip fees" generated every time a consumer's phone carrier had to look up a Caller ID number used by the Cruise Call Telemarketers or other clients. And fourth, the TMC Companies hid the Cruise Call Telemarketers' and other clients' identities when responding to law enforcement subpoenas and civil investigative demands seeking such information.

COMMON ENTERPRISE

45. TMC was the original member of the common enterprise beginning in 2007. COMMERCE

47. At all times material to this Complaint, Defendants have maintained a substantial course of trade in or affecting commerce, as “commerce” is defined in Section 4 of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. § 44.

THE TELEMARKETING SALES RULE

48. Congress directed the Commission to prescribe rules prohibiting abusive and deceptive telemarketing acts or practices pursuant to the Telemarketing Act, 15 U.S.C. §§ 6101-6108. The Commission adopted the original TSR in 1995, extensively amended it in 2003, and amended certain provisions thereafter. 16 C.F.R. Part 310.

49. Among other things, the 2003 amendments to the TSR established a do-not-call registry, maintained by the Commission (the “National Do Not Call Registry” or “Registry”), of consumers who do not wish to receive certain types of telemarketing calls. Consumers can register their telephone numbers on the Registry without charge either through a toll-free telephone call or over the Internet at donotcall.gov.

50. Consumers who receive telemarketing calls to their registered numbers can complain of Registry violations the same way they registered, through a toll-free telephone call or over the Internet at donotcall.gov, or by otherwise contacting law enforcement authorities.

51. The Commission allows sellers, telemarketers, and other permitted organizations to access the Registry over the Internet at telemarketing.donotcall.gov, to pay the fee(s) if required, and to download the numbers not to call.

52. Under the TSR, an “outbound telephone call” means a telephone call initiated by a telemarketer to induce the purchase of goods or services or to solicit a charitable contribution. 16 C.F.R. § 310.2(v).

53. The TSR prohibits sellers and telemarketers from initiating an outbound telephone call to numbers on the Registry in violation of the TSR. 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(b)(1)(iii)(B).

54. The TSR also prohibits sellers and telemarketers from initiating an outbound telephone call to any person when that person previously has stated that he or she does not wish to receive an outbound telephone call made by or on behalf of the seller whose goods or services are being offered. 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(b)(1)(iii)(A).

55. As amended, effective September 1, 2009, 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(b)(1)(v) of the TSR prohibits initiating an outbound telephone call that delivers a prerecorded message to induce the purchase of any good or service unless the seller has obtained from the recipient of the call an express agreement, in writing, that evidences the willingness of the recipient of the call to receive calls that deliver prerecorded messages by or on behalf of a specific seller. The express agreement must include the recipient’s telephone number and signature, must be obtained after a clear and conspicuous disclosure that the purpose of the agreement is to authorize the seller to place prerecorded calls to such person, and must be obtained without requiring, directly or indirectly, that the agreement be executed as a condition of purchasing any good or service. 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(b)(1)(v)(A).

56. The TSR requires that sellers and telemarketers transmit or cause to be transmitted the telephone number of the telemarketer and, when made available by the telemarketer's carrier, the name of the telemarketer, to any caller identification service in use by a recipient of a telemarketing call, or transmit the customer service number of the seller on whose behalf the call is made and, when made available by the telemarketer's carrier, the name of the seller. 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(a)(8).

57. It is a violation of the TSR for any person to provide substantial assistance or support to any seller or telemarketer when that person knows or consciously avoids knowing that the seller or telemarketer is engaged in any practice that violates Sections 310.3(a), (c) or (d), or 310.4 of the TSR. 16 C.F.R. § 310.3(b).

58. Pursuant to Section 3(c) of the Telemarketing Act, 15 U.S.C. § 6102(c), and Section 18(d)(3) of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. § 57a(d)(3), a violation of the TSR constitutes an unfair or deceptive act or practice in or affecting commerce, in violation of Section 5(a) of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. § 45(a).

59. Pursuant to Sections 501.203(3)(a) and (c), and 501.207, Fla. Stat., a violation of the TSR constitutes an unfair or deceptive act or practice in or affecting commerce, in violation of Section 5(a) of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. § 45(a) and therefore in violation of Florida's Deceptive and Unfair Trade Practices Act, Chapter 501, Part II, Fla. Stat. ("FDUTPA").

60. Pursuant to N.C. Gen. Stat. § 75-102(e), a violation of the TSR constitutes a violation of the North Carolina Telephone Solicitors Act, N.C. Gen. Statutes § 75-100, et seq. It also constitutes a violation of the North Carolina Unfair and Deceptive Trade Practices Act, N.C. Gen. Statutes § 75-1.1, et seq.

THE CRUISE CALL DEFENDANTS' BUSINESS ACTIVITIES

Billions of Illegal Robocalls Used as a Lead Generation Tool

61. Broomfield and Birkett created LSS in July 2011 to sell CenturyLink cable service door-to-door. When that endeavor failed, they brainstormed other ways to make money. Their solution: a scheme to use survey robocalls as a lead generation tool.

62. The robocall lead generation plan required: (1) political action committees (“PACs”) that wished to make survey robocalls at no cost and (2) a lead buyer that would pay to have callers transferred to the lead buyer’s telemarketers. Birkett and Broomfield enlisted deJongh (Birkett’s cousin) to find PACs interested in free survey robocalls and pitched CCL with the idea of using the robocalls as a lead generation tool for CCL, i.e., a way to identify potential customers.

The Funds

63. Broomfield told CCL that he could deliver a large number of leads by pitching CCL’s “free cruise” during the survey calls. CCL agreed to purchase the leads from LSS. CCL agreed to pay LSS between $2 and $3 per lead for all leads who listened to at least 30 seconds of the CCL “free cruise” sales pitch.

The Product

64. In order to take the CCL cruise, consumers had to pay $118 in “port fees” for a double-occupancy cruise. CCL subjected all consumers who spoke with a CCL telemarketer to aggressive CCL sales pitches designed to induce consumers to purchase vacation upgrades, such as hotels, rental cars, extended stays, excursions, etc., that could result in significant additional charges (and profit for CCL).

The PACs

65. Economic Strategy and deJongh contacted PACs that might be interested in conducting political survey robocalls. DeJongh offered to make millions of free survey robocalls for these PACs. In return, he requested that the PACs allow him to add a pitch at the beginning and end of the robocalls notifying consumers that if they completed the survey, they would be eligible for a “free” three-day/two-night cruise to the Bahamas provided by CCL. Most PACs agreed to include this message on the robocalls.

The Scripts

66. The PACs typically provided the survey questions that they wanted to have asked, and deJongh reviewed them. DeJongh and Birkett then blasted the surveys to consumers using robocalls. In some instances, however, deJongh and Birkett wrote their own survey questions for the robocalls. These “homegrown” survey robocalls also included the “free” cruise pitch.

67. CCL had access to the survey scripts, by virtue of a website “portal” that CCL requested deJongh install on his corporate website that allowed CCL, using a username and password, to review scripts, contracts, recordings and corporate emails.

The Consumer Phone Numbers

68. DeJongh secured a list of consumer phone numbers for the entire United States and provided those numbers to TSOA International (“TSOA”) to use in the calling campaigns. TSOA hosted a web-based dialing platform that could “blast” out an enormous volume of robocalls each day.

69. The calling list deJongh purchased included more than one hundred million phone numbers. The Cruise Call Telemarketers did not scrub the list against the National Do Not Call Registry.

The Caller ID Names and Numbers

70. Economic Strategy and LSS blasted the robocalls with approximately 100 different Caller ID phone numbers, most of which were provided by the TMC Enterprise.

71. Economic Strategy and LSS shared responsibility for inputting the desired Caller ID Number into TSOA's robodialer to transmit with the robocalls.

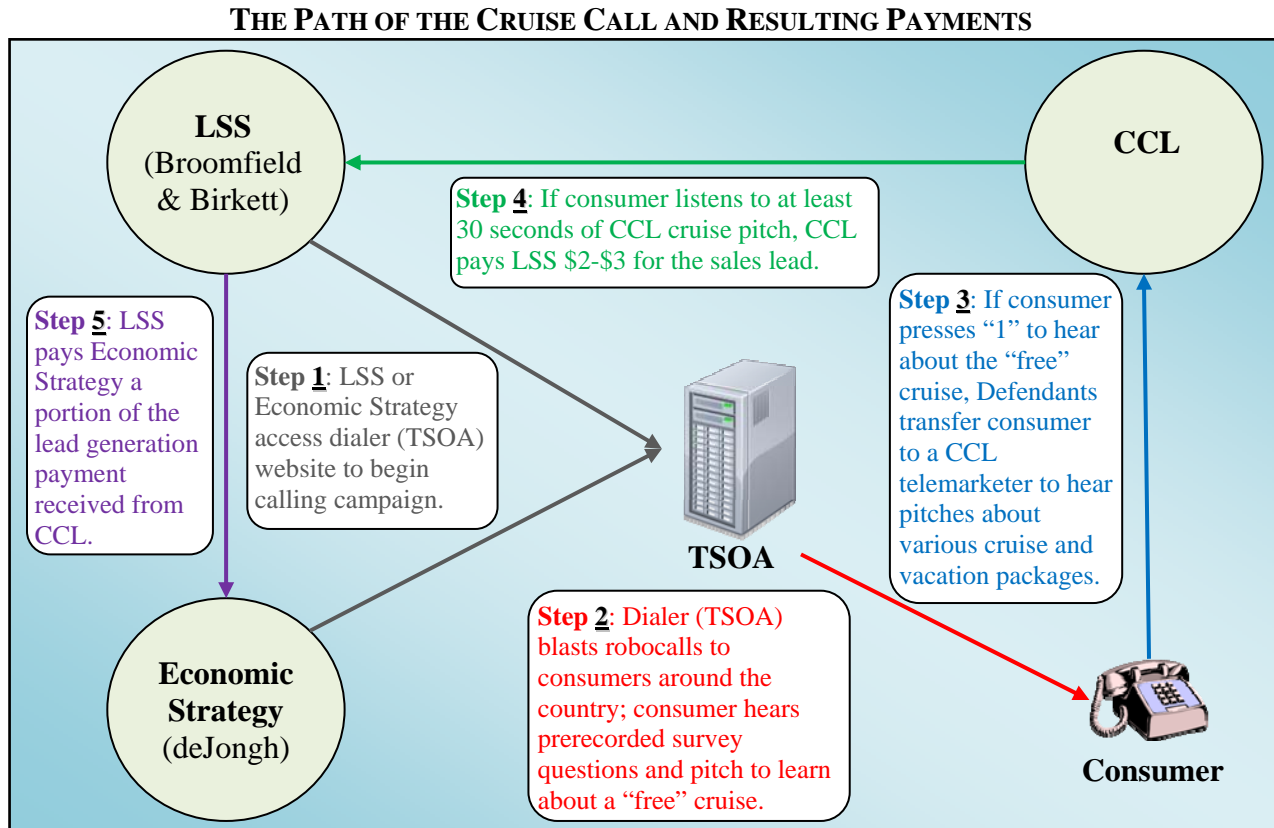

72. Using additional services provided by the TMC Enterprise, Economic Strategy and LSS assigned many of the cruise robocalls with a Caller ID name – "IND SUR GROUP" – that did not identify any of the entities making the calls.

The Dialer

73. Both Economic Strategy and LSS accessed TSOA's web-based dialing platform to start and stop robocalling campaigns. TSOA billed Economic Strategy for the costs of the dialing and Economic Strategy relayed those costs to LSS. LSS would, in turn, remit funds to deJongh to cover the costs of the robocalling.

The Calls

74. The following chart shows the five steps involved in making the cruise calls and funneling the money generated by the calls between the various Cruise Call Telemarketers:

75. The cruise call lead generation campaign was successful. CCL estimates it received approximately 20,000 inbound transfers from the calls each week, requiring CCL to add call center representatives to handle the increased call volume.

76. Over a period of only ten months, CCL paid deJongh, Birkett and Broomfield between $1,000,000 to $2,000,000 for the inbound transfer leads.

77. Birkett, Broomfield and deJongh finally stopped the lead generation robocalling campaign in July or August 2012 because, as deJongh testified, “there was [sic] a ton of complaints.” Investigational Hearing of Jacob deJongh at 215. The calls also led to a flurry of lawsuits from angry consumers, including a putative class action lawsuit, Birchmeier v. Caribbean Cruise Line, Inc., No. 1:12-cv-4069 (N.D. Ill.).

The Cruise Call Defendants Violated the Telemarketing Sales Rule

78. In numerous instances, LSS and Economic Strategy made telemarketing calls on behalf of CCL: (1) to numbers listed on the National Do Not Call Registry, in violation of 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(b)(1)(iii)(B); (2) to people who had previously requested that CCL no longer call them, in violation of 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(b)(1)(iii)(A); (3) that delivered a prerecorded message, in violation of 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(b)(1)(v); and (4) that failed to transmit or cause to be transmitted the name of the telemarketer or seller, in violation of 16 C.F.R. § 310.4(a)(8).

79. CCL is a “seller” and “telemarketer” engaged in “telemarketing,” as defined by the TSR, 16 C.F.R. § 310.2.

80. LSS, Economic Strategy, Broomfield, Birkett and deJongh are “telemarketers” engaged in “telemarketing,” as defined by the TSR, 16 C.F.R. § 310.2.

81. CCL is a seller and telemarketer of goods or services (including cruise vacations) to consumers. CCL has caused telemarketers (including LSS, Economic Strategy, Broomfield, Birkett and deJongh) to call consumers to induce the purchase of goods or services from CCL.

82. CCL also operates its own telemarketing rooms that call consumers to induce them to purchase goods or services from CCL.

83. LSS, Economic Strategy, Broomfield, Birkett and deJongh are telemarketers that initiated outbound telephone calls to consumers in the United States to induce the purchase of goods or services provided by CCL.

84. The Cruise Call Defendants have engaged in telemarketing by a plan, program, or campaign conducted to induce the purchase of goods or services by use of one or more telephones and which involves more than one interstate telephone call. Specifically, the Cruise Call Defendants made phone calls marketing cruise vacations to consumers.

85. At all times relevant to this Complaint, the Cruise Call Defendants have maintained a substantial course of trade or business in the offering for sale and sale of goods or services via the telephone, in or affecting commerce, as “commerce” is defined in Section 4 of the FTC Act, 15 U.S.C. § 44.

86. To induce the purchase of their goods or services, the Cruise Call Defendants caused LSS, Economic Strategy, Broomfield, Birkett and deJongh to initiate telephone calls to telephone numbers on the National Do Not Call Registry.

87. To induce the purchase of their goods or services, the Cruise Call Defendants caused LSS, Economic Strategy, Broomfield, Birkett and deJongh to initiate telephone calls to the telephone numbers of consumers who have previously stated that they did not wish to receive calls by or on behalf of CCL.

88. In the course of the telemarketing described above, the Cruise Call Defendants did not transmit or cause to be transmitted to caller identification services the name of the telemarketer making the call, or the name of CCL.

89. In the course of the telemarketing described above, since September 1, 2009, the Cruise Call Defendants have made outbound telephone calls that deliver prerecorded messages offering CCL’s goods or services to persons who have not signed an express agreement, in writing, that authorizes delivery of prerecorded messages by or on behalf of CCL.

THE PACIFIC TELECOM DEFENDANTS’ BUSINESS ACTIVITIES

The Pacific Telecom Defendants Assisted and Facilitated Billions of Illegal Calls, Including the Cruise Call Telemarketers’ Robocalls

90. The Pacific Telecom Defendants, including the TMC Enterprise, assisted telemarketers, including the Cruise Call Telemarketers, in four ways: (1) making it possible for clients to spoof their Caller ID Numbers by providing clients with phone numbers to use for Caller ID Number purposes; (2) providing the means by which those clients could assign (and change at will) the Caller ID Name (“CNAM”) that would be associated with a particular telephone number; (3) funding part of the robocalling campaigns by paying clients a portion of the “dip fees” generated by their telemarketing activities; and (4) hiding clients’ identities when responding to law enforcement subpoenas and civil investigative demands requesting such information.

Caller ID Information

91. The following graphic of a generic consumer Caller ID box demonstrates how typical consumers experience Caller ID Numbers and CNAMs on their home phones:

Caller ID Number

92. Pacific Telecom owned thousands of phone numbers that it leased initially to the TMC Enterprise, which then leased and subleased those phone numbers to telemarketing operations to use as Caller ID Numbers for telemarketing calls.

93. Economic Strategy, for example, leased dozens of telephone numbers from the TMC Enterprise that it then used for its cruise call telemarketing.

94. The TMC Enterprise provided these numbers to telemarketers, including Economic Strategy, at no cost, instead earning profits by retaining a portion of the “dip fees,” discussed below.

95. By providing telephone numbers, the Pacific Telecom Defendants, including the TMC Enterprise, assisted and facilitated telemarketers, including the Cruise Call Telemarketers, in two important ways.

96. First, it allowed telemarketers to spread their calls over dozens of different Caller ID Numbers, thus limiting consumers’ ability to block the calls using call blocking technology and reducing law enforcement scrutiny by lowering the total complaint volumes for each individual Caller ID Number. Many telephone carriers permit their customers to block calls from a limited number of Caller ID Numbers. Customers can typically block no more than 5-20 Caller ID Numbers at a time, depending on the carrier. When a telemarketer spreads their calls over dozens of different Caller ID Numbers, consumers lose the ability to block effectively Caller ID Numbers from that telemarketer. Moreover, law enforcement analyzes complaint data tied to each Caller ID Number. When telemarketers have no-cost access to an enormous supply of different Caller ID Numbers, it becomes much more difficult for law enforcement to analyze the true impact of a particular calling campaign because the complaint information is spread across dozens of disparate Caller ID Numbers.

97. Second, by having access to a large volume of duly assigned telephone numbers, telemarketers were able to take advantage of CNAM services and the resulting CNAM dip fees, described below.

98. Telephone numbers assigned to Pacific Telecom generated more than one million Do Not Call complaints between April 2010 and October 2012.

CNAM

99. The TMC Enterprise also provided a Caller ID management website that allowed telemarketers to assign a CNAM – a Caller ID Name – to each Caller ID Number they leased from the enterprise. Moreover, telemarketers could use the Caller ID management website to change the CNAM as often as they wanted, allowing them to easily manipulate the data that appeared on a consumer’s Caller ID display. This made it more difficult for consumers to identify the source of an abusive call, and also made it harder for consumers to screen calls because the name of the caller could change from one call to the next.

100. Using the TMC Enterprise Caller ID management website, the Cruise Call Telemarketers were able to transmit the inaccurate and generic CNAM “IND SUR GROUP.”

101. In addition to providing Caller ID numbers and CNAM services to the Cruise Call telemarketers, the TMC Enterprise also provided such services to many other clients, including the defendants in United States v. Cox, No. 8:11-cv-01910 (C.D. Cal.). The Department of Justice, acting on behalf of the Commission, filed the Cox complaint in December 2011. The defendants in the Cox litigation included six telemarketing companies that, beginning in 2007, made millions of illegal robocalls, transmitted false Caller ID information and called numbers on the National Do Not Call Registry, using Caller ID Numbers leased from the TMC Enterprise. The Cox telemarketing calls marketed, among other products and services, credit card interest rate reduction programs, extended automobile warranties and home security systems. The Cox defendants used various generic or inaccurate CNAMs, including “CARD SERVICES,” “CREDIT SERVICES” and “PRIVATE OFFICE.” In February 2013, the parties entered into a stipulated final order that imposes on the Cox defendants a lifetime telemarketing ban and a suspended $1.1 million civil penalty.

102. The TMC Enterprise also provided Caller ID Numbers and CNAM services to the defendants in United States v. JGRD, Inc., No. 2:12-cv-00945 (E.D. Pa.). The Department of Justice, acting on behalf of the Commission, filed the JGRD complaint in February 2012. The JGRD telemarketing calls marketed auto warranties, carpet cleaning services, travel services, debt consolidation and mortgage services, and other services using illegal robocalls. Beginning in 2008, the JGRD defendants used various generic or inaccurate CNAMs, including “CUSTOMERSVC,” “CUST SERVICE,” “SERVICE,” “SERVICE ANNOUNC” and “INSURANCECO.” At the time of filing the complaint, the parties agreed to a stipulated final order that imposes on the JGRD defendants a $1 million civil penalty, suspended after payment of $10,000.

CNAM Dip Fees

103. When a receiving party’s carrier looks up a Caller ID Number in a CNAM Database, that carrier must pay a small fee (a “dip fee”) to the database as a cost of accessing the database. The CNAM databases often send a portion of the dip fee back to the company that owns the originating phone number.

104. In order to entice clients to lease numbers, the TMC Enterprise paid its clients a portion of the dip fees (a fraction of a cent per call) it received from the CNAM databases. The TMC Enterprise’s telemarketing clients made millions of calls a day, so the dip fees added up quickly.

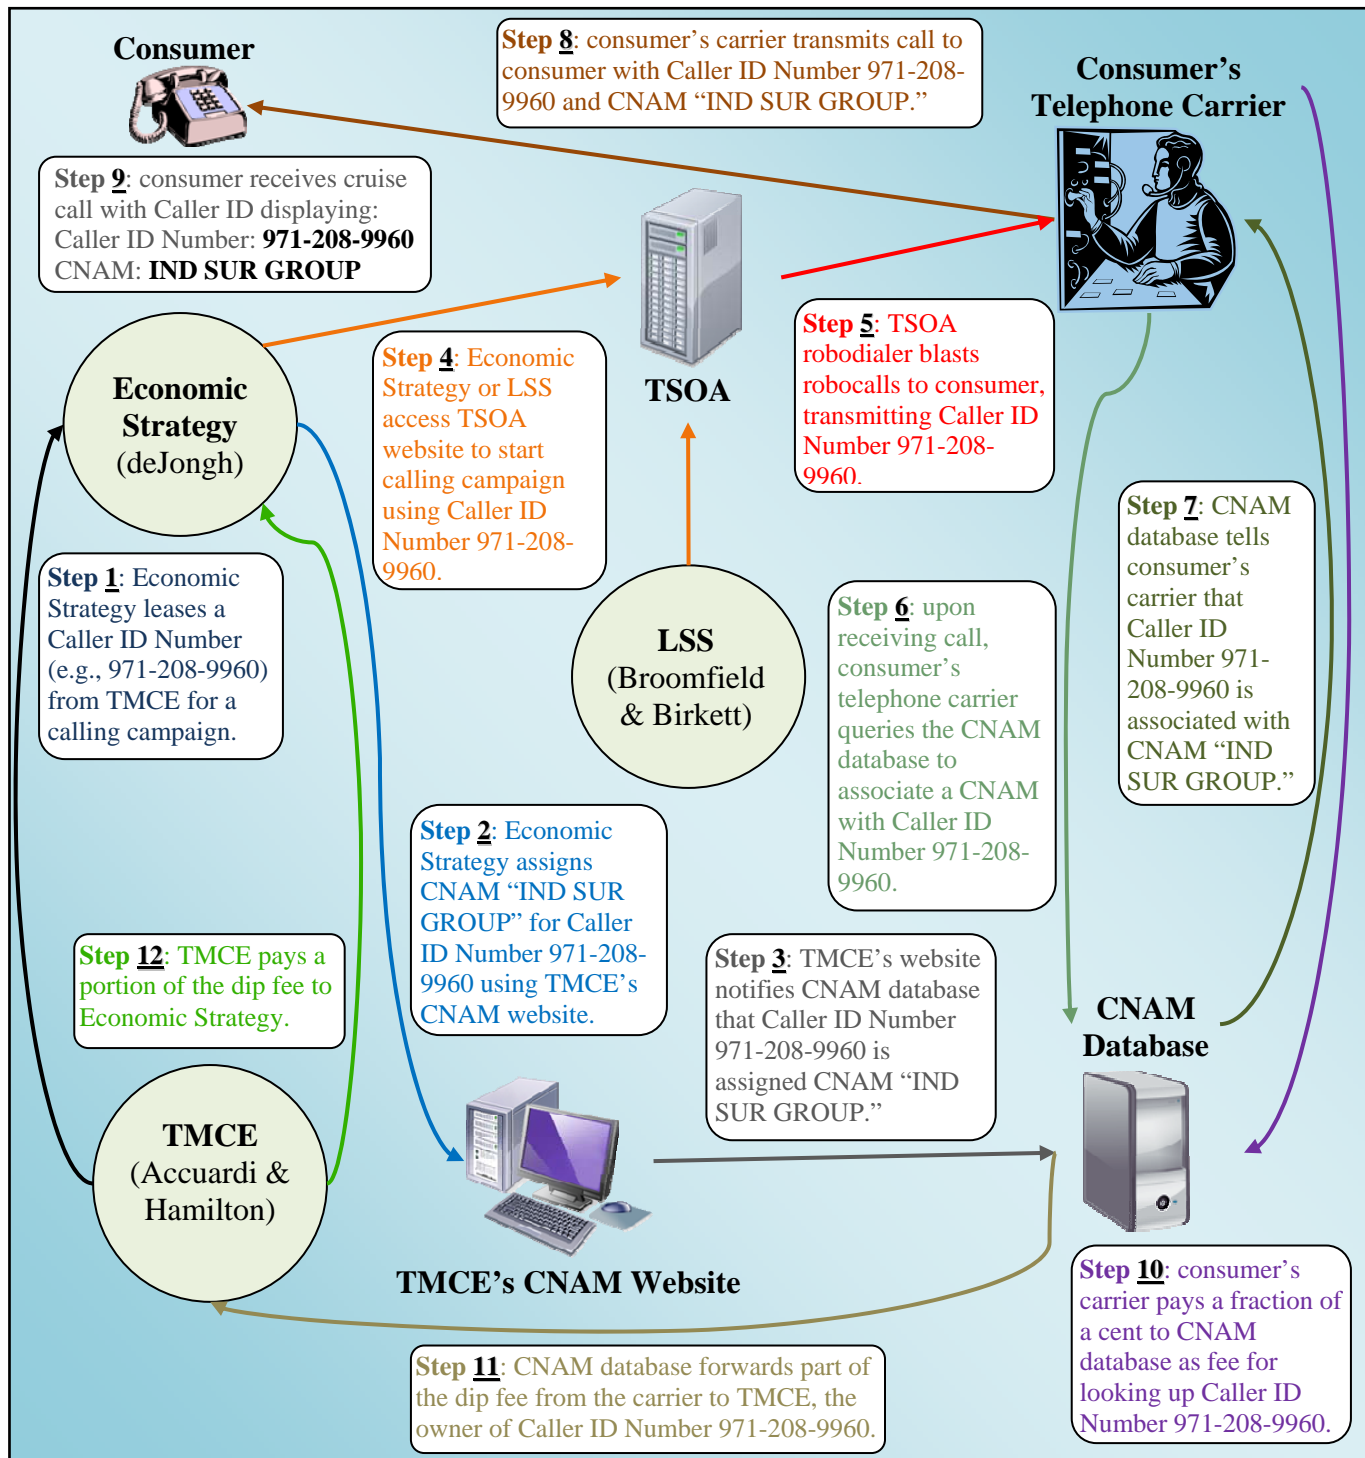

105. The TMC Enterprise paid Economic Strategy over $135,000 in CNAM dip fees over a period of only four months.

106. By redirecting some of these fees back to the client, the TMC Enterprise provided telemarketers with a reliable income stream that helped fund robocalling campaigns.

TMCE's Role in the Cruise Calls

107. The following chart illustrates in twelve steps how the TMC Enterprise assisted one of its clients, Economic Strategy, in: (1) obtaining Caller ID Numbers for the cruise calls, (2) assigning CNAMs to the Caller ID Numbers, (3) and profiting from CNAM dips generated by the calls:

TMCE'S ROLE IN THE CRUISE CALLS
(START AT STEP 1 ON LEFT SIDE OF GRAPHIC)

Hiding Clients from Law Enforcement

108. In numerous instances, the TMC Enterprise refused to identify its clients in response to law enforcement subpoenas and civil investigative demands requiring the production of such information.

109. For instance, in response to civil investigative demands from the Commission requiring the TMC Enterprise to identify the clients assigned Caller ID Numbers used by the Cruise Call Telemarketers, the TMC Enterprise failed to identify the end user of the Caller ID Numbers. The TMC Enterprise failed to provide this information, even though the TMC Enterprise assigned many of the Caller ID Numbers at issue in the civil investigative demands to Economic Strategy prior to responding to the civil investigative demands.

110. By refusing to provide information about its clients in response to law enforcement subpoenas and civil investigative demands, the TMC Enterprise helped its clients avoid law enforcement scrutiny and enforcement actions for violation of state and federal telemarketing laws.

The Pacific Telecom Defendants Knew
That Their Clients Were Violating the TSR

111. Accuardi and Hamilton knew that their clients were violating the TSR. They had an employee – David Nelson – whose sole responsibility was responding to consumer complaints and subpoenas directed to the TMC Enterprise. The TMC Enterprise received a large volume of consumer complaints because consumers who researched Caller ID Numbers making unwanted calls could determine, after some internet investigation, that Pacific Telecom owned the Caller ID Number in question.

112. Consumer complaints flowed into the TMC Enterprise's offices on a daily basis. Fred Accuardi was personally aware that the TMC Enterprise received between 15 and 20 consumer complaints per day about calls with Caller IDs assigned by the TMC Enterprise to their clients.

113. These complaints included Do Not Call complaints and robocall complaints. In addition, the TMC Enterprise received an average of two to three law enforcement or regulatory subpoenas per day seeking information about the TMC Enterprise's clients.

114. In addition to the knowledge of consumer complaints about Caller ID Numbers leased from the TMC Enterprise, the TMC Enterprise was also aware that Economic Strategy made "survey" calls that tried to sell cruise vacations to consumers.

115. The TMC Enterprise received complaints about the Economic Strategy calls and learned that consumers were receiving robocalls with political messages that would also try to sell a cruise vacation.

116. The TMC Enterprise, however, continued to provide Caller ID Numbers and CNAM services to the Cruise Call Telemarketers until the campaign ended in July or August 2012. The TMC Enterprise also provided CNAM dip fees, which continued to roll in for months after the calls stopped, to the Cruise Call Telemarketers through October 2012.

117. As noted previously, other clients of the TMC Enterprise used its Caller ID management website to transmit inaccurate CNAMs, such as "IND SUR GROUP," "CARD SERVICES," "CREDIT SERVICES," "PRIVATE OFFICE," "CUSTOMERSVC," "CUST SERVICE," "SERVICE," "SERVICE ANNOUNC" and "INSURANCECO." The TMC Enterprise had access to its Caller ID management website and reviewed CNAMs used by its clients.

The Pacific Telecom Defendants Violated the Telemarketing Sales Rule

118. The Pacific Telecom Defendants, including the TMC Enterprise, have provided substantial assistance or support to “seller[s]” and “telemarketer[s]” engaged in “telemarketing,” as defined by the TSR, 16 C.F.R. § 310.2.

119. In numerous instances, the TMC Enterprise’s clients made telemarketing calls using Pacific Telecom telephone numbers that transmitted or caused to be transmitted CNAMs that did not name the telemarketer or seller on whose behalf the TMC Enterprise’s clients were making the telephone call.

120. The Pacific Telecom Defendants, including the TMC Enterprise, knew the identity of the telemarketers with which they contracted, had access to the database that associated the names and numbers used by the Cruise Call Telemarketers and other TMC Enterprise telemarketer clients, and reviewed that database to identify CNAMs used by their clients.

121. Using the TMC Enterprises’ Caller ID management website, telemarketers were able to blast robocalls using CNAMs that failed to identify the telemarketer or seller placing the call – CNAMs such as “IND SUR GROUP,” “CARD SERVICES,” “CREDIT SERVICES” and “PRIVATE OFFICE.”

122. The Pacific Telecom Defendants, including the TMC Enterprise, knew, or consciously avoided knowing, of instances in which the Caller ID Numbers or CNAMs did not accurately reflect the identity of the telemarketer or seller making the call.

123. In numerous instances, the Cruise Call Telemarketers and other TMC Enterprise clients made outbound calls to induce the sale of goods or services to numbers listed on the National Do Not Call Registry.

124. The Pacific Telecom Defendants, including the TMC Enterprise, knew, or consciously avoided knowing, that the Cruise Call Telemarketers and other TMC Enterprises clients were making such calls.

125. In numerous instances since September 1, 2009, the Cruise Call Telemarketers and other TMC Enterprise clients made outbound calls that delivered prerecorded messages to induce the sale of goods or services when the persons to whom these telephone calls were made had not expressly agreed, in writing, to authorize the seller to place prerecorded calls to such person.

126. The Pacific Telecom Defendants, including the TMC Enterprise, knew, or consciously avoided knowing, that the Cruise Call Telemarketers and other TMC Enterprise clients were making such calls.

127. Beginning in 2007, though October 2012, Defendants Accuardi and TMC provided substantial assistance and support to their clients, by, among other things, engaging in the conduct set forth herein, even though Accuardi and TMC knew, or consciously avoided knowing, that the Cruise Call Telemarketers and other TMC Enterprise clients were engaged in violations of Section 310.4 of the TSR.

128. Between September 2008 and September 2011, Defendant T M Caller ID provided substantial assistance and support to its clients, by, among other things, engaging in the conduct set forth herein, even though T M Caller ID knew, or consciously avoided knowing, that the Cruise Call Telemarketers and other TMC Enterprise clients were engaged in violations of Section 310.4 of the TSR.

129. In addition, beginning July 2011 through October 2012, Defendants ITC and IT, LLC provided substantial assistance and support to their clients, by, among other things, engaging in the conduct set forth herein, even though ITC and IT, LLC knew, or consciously avoided knowing, that the Cruise Call Telemarketers and other TMC Enterprise clients were engaged in violations of Section 310.4 of the TSR.

130. Finally, beginning July 15, 2011 through October 2012, Defendants Hamilton and Pacific Telecom provided substantial assistance and support to their clients, by, among other things, engaging in the conduct set forth herein, even though Hamilton and Pacific Telecom knew, or consciously avoided knowing, that the Cruise Call Telemarketers and other TMC Enterprise clients were engaged in violations of Section 310.4 of the TSR.
